THE deficiency of hotel accommodation in India, China, and other places in the East to which Europeans now resort in large and annually increasing numbers, is a subject of general complaint; and it is evident that the development of the means of transit by Ocean and River Steamers, and by Railways, which has been in rapid progress now for some years, must imperfectly fulfil all its important objects, so far as European intercourse with the East is concerned until this want is adequately supplied.

In England, and on the Continent of Europe, it is now an ascertained fact that the Joint Stock system may most successfully be applied to the establishment of Hotels of the first class. It this be so where good private Hotels before existed in large numbers there seems no reason to doubt that an equal dagree of commerical success is attainable by the application of capital, upon the same system, to the same object, in countries where, though the demand is great and increasing, it may almost be said that good private Hotels do not exist.

In Calcutta a Joint Stock Company has lately purchased and undertaken the management of a hotel, and the prospects of the enterprise, as a commcial speculation, may be inferred from the very high premium at which their Shares are quoted in the Calcutta market, see "Times" July 17, the "Englishman's Weekly Mail" of June 8th 1863, and "Allen's Indian Mail." viz.—£25 paid, present value £42½ ex div., equal to 70 per cent. premium, and the payment of a dividend of 10 per cent. for the half year ending 30th April last, equal to 20 per cent. per annum. Bombay offers a wide field for the establishment of a Hotel of a first-class character. The early completion of vast lines of railway converging in the island of Bombay, and the more frequent steam communication between that port and Europe, which will soon take place, must very much increase the demand for such accommodation. The same may be said of Madras.

It is under these circumstances that the Oriental Hotels Company, Limited, is established, in the confident belief that the application of European capital to India in this form, will be not less profitable than useful. It is proposed, in the first instance, to supply the urgent requirements of Bombay and Point de Galle. There are other equally important places which will naturally engage the early attention of the Company, such for example as Madras, Singapore, and Kurrachee; not to speak of many very important Railway Stations in the interior of India, where there are now no Hotels at all, and where, at comparatively small outlay, there is a large field for profitable operations.

The larger class of the Company's Hotels will afford all the conveniences of the best European Hotels, adapted to the climate, and to the habits of those for whom they are intended; whilst, in even the smallest class, the health and comfort of the inmates will be carefully studied.

It is intended to constitute Local Committees of Management in each Presidency, where Hotels may be established.

In the event of two-thirds of the first issue of Shares not being subscribed for, no allotment will take place, and the deposits will be returned to the subscribers, without deduction.

It is proposed to pay to Shareholders 5 per cent. interest upon the capital as paid up, until the first dividend is declared.

Prospectuses and forms of application for Shares may be had on application to the Bankers, the Broker, or the Secretary.

Deposits upon application for Shares will be received in Bombay, at the Agra and United Service Bank, Limited, to whose care applications for Shares should be forwarded for transmission to the Directors of the Oriental Hotels Company (Limited).

BOMBAY MARKET REPORT.

BOMBAY, 28*th October* 1863.

OUR Import Market has continued very active during the fortnight. For Cotton Piece Goods, there exists a brisk demand, chiefly speculative, at advanced rates, corresponding to the activity exhibited by the Liverpool and Manchester Markets, and a rather large amount of business has been transacted. Yarns have participated in the improvement. Metals are rather quiet and lower.

In the Export Market there exists a good demand for Cotton, and though business has not been very extensive, prices have advanced to nearly Rs. 600 for Dhollera. Seeds have rather a dull demand.

IMPORTS.

COTTON PIECE GOODS.—These continue in active demand at advancing rates. Large purchases are being made by speculators, but for actual consumption the movements from the bazar are rather moderate. Grey Shirtings 40-in. 6 lbs. to 8¼ lbs., are most in demand, and command higher rates; 45, 50, and 54-in. are again higher, the demand for Madras and Colombo having caused a rise in value. T Cloths are much wanted at higher rates. Madapollams remain firm. Mulls have a good enquiry. Jacconets attract the attention of speculators at an increased value. Printers, Drills, Longcloths, and Domestics are all getting very scarce and held for higher rates.

Bleached Goods have a good enquiry at full prices, and most kinds are quoted at improved figures.

Dyed and Printed Goods though not so much in request, are still firmer in value and demand.

Turkey Red Goods are without much improvement. The sales reported are:—

(From the 12th to the 26th instant inclusive.)

Grey Shirtings.

METALS.—For Copper the enquiry has been very slack, and rates are somewhat easier. Iron,—stocks have been accumulating and prices for all descriptions have given way in the absence of demand. Yellow Metal has also declined in value. Steel is difficult of sale at full rates on account of heavy stock on hand. Spelter is inactive and rates remain unaltered. Tin Plates enquired at slightly dearer rates. Quicksilver worth Rs. 42½.

COALS moderately enquired for at Rs. 17 to 18, and Coke at Rs. 19 to 20.

COCHINEAL is dull and quoted Rs. 1½.

SAFFRON is in request at Rs. 20½.

EXPORTS.

COTTON.—Owing to the favourable advices from Liverpool, the market has continued active, and prices are becoming firmer. A fair amount of business has been transacted during the fortnight, chiefly by Native shippers. Supplies are coming in to a fair extent. Dhollera and Bhownuggur offer best selection in the market at present, while other descriptions are not of favourable quality. Sale:—

SALTPETRE.—Mooltan is held at Rs. 12 to 13, and Sind for Rs. 8 to 9.

FREIGHTS

Are without alteration and the rates for Cotton continue at £3-5 to £4 for Liverpool, and £3-5 to £3-10 for London. For Havre, the Maupertius, Robertson, and Ville de Lima are on the berth at frs. 110 to frs. 115 and the Duc de Malakoff, is seeking a charter for the same Port. From Cochin we have received news that the Wings of the Wind, loading there for London, has during a agle become a total wreck, and several of the crew drowned. Small ships for Cochin and other Ports are much wanted.

MONEY MARKET AND EXCHANGE.

Since our last report, money has become very scarce, and the Bank of Bombay has stopped advances on Government Securities on account of the low state of its cash balance, the rates of discount being nominally 9 per cent. on Government Paper, and 11 per cent. on Private Bills. In the bazar also, money is very scarce, and 14 per cent. is demanded for loans on shares. It is believed that the pressure for money although severe is not likely to be of long duration. The Share market shews signs of returning life. The following is a statement of the Bank made up to the 24th instant:—

Liabilities.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Proprietors' Capital | Rs. | 5,225,000 |
| Public Deposits | ,, | 4,657,752 |
| Other Deposits | ,, | 20,019,963 |
| Bank's Notes and Bills outstanding | ,, | 506,761 |
| Rest | ,, | 726,946 |
| Rupees... | | 31,136,422 |

Assets.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Loans on Deposit of Govt. Securities | Rs. | 6,721,567 |
| Credit Accounts on do. do. | ,, | 3,122,034 |
| Bills discounted | ,, | 11,760,231 |
| Dead Stock | ,, | 489,041 |
| Balances with Branches and Agents | ,, | 5,177,303 |
| Govt. Reserve.— | ,, | 657,752 |
| Cash and Currency Notes | ,, | 3,208,494 |
| Rupees... | | 31,136,422 |

Government Securities are very difficult of sale; the quotations are for Fours Rs. 95¼; for Fives, Rs. 105; and for Fives-and-a-half, Rs. 114½.

Exchange on England again shows an advance, and a large business has been done for this Mail at 2s. 1½d. for Bank Bills; 2s. 1 3-16d. to 2s. 1½d. for Credits; and 2s. 1 5-16d. to 2s. 1½d. for Documents. They close at 2s. 1d. for Bank Bills; 2s. 1½d. for Credits; and 2s. 1½d. for Documents.

On Calcutta, rates have receded to Rs. 97 for 60 days' sight Bills, and Rs. 98¼ for sight Bills.

On China, there is nothing doing; rate is nominally Rs. 224 for 100 dollars.

THE

Bombay Gazette.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1863.

THE Bombay Mail of the 9th September reached Marseilles on Saturday the 3rd inst. and was delivered in London on Monday morning the 5th idem.

WE regret to see it stated in the papers received by the Mail yesterday, that the Nile this year has risen so considerably, that an inundation has destroyed part of the Railway, and that cotton shipments are likely to be retarded in consequence.

THE Home News says it has received several letters, urging upon Indian Officers the immediate necessity of providing adequate funds to aid and strengthen the efforts of the committee acting on their behalf in London in prosecuting the claims of Indian Officers, before the Royal Commission, now investigating the grievances caused by the amalgamation scheme. The appeal that is now being made, we cannot doubt will be zealously responded to—for there is no time to be lost, and every fresh subscription sent to the committee, will have the effect of inspiring its members, to renewed efforts.

We are very glad to hear that Major Maude, C.B. the Governor General's Agent for Central India, has given a subscription to the Fund of Rs. 50 which will be remitted through Messrs. Forbes & Co., and Captain Hanson of the 9th Regt. N. I. at Indore, a subscription of Rs. 20. We have no doubt these subscriptions will be followed up liberally, by many other Officers.

THE Globe has the following interesting statement regarding Lord Clyde, and a distinguished French General, to whom the former made a bequest by a Codicil to his will:—"The late Lord Clyde thus expresses himself in reference to General Vinoy now commanding the 1st Division of the Army of Paris"—'I give and bequeath to Lieutenant General Vinoy, commanding a division in the French army, and my old and beloved comrade in the Crimea, the sum of five hundred pounds, as a token of my especial esteem and regard.' During the Crimean campaign General Vinoy commanded a body of French troops placed near those commanded by Sir Colin Campbell at Balaclava. On several occasions difficult and perilous duties were confided to their united forces. The upshot was a warm and lasting friendship between the two Generals, whose example contributed much to the establishment of that thorough good understanding, kindly feeling, and mutual admiration, which marked the intercourse of the Zouaves and Highlanders throughout the Crimean war. If we are not misinformed, a portrait of General Vinoy, painted expressly for Queen Victoria, now hangs in her Majesty's writing closet at Windsor Castle, as companion picture to that of his comrade in arms, Sir Colin Campbell. At the assault and capture of the Malakoff, General Vinoy greatly distinguished himself, and at this moment there is no officer in the French army more likely than Vinoy to obtain a marshal's truncheon."

WE regret to see it stated in the Times of the 3rd instant that "the ship Assaye, Captain Thomas which left Gravesend on Sunday, with telegraph cable, for Bombay, incurred a heavy gale from the southward, when off the coast of Cornwall, on Wednesday, and put back to the Sound last night. She is reported to have sprung her mainmast, lost maintopsail-yard, and had her boats stove. The Assaye was originally a paddlewheel ship, belonging to the navy. She is very long, and was said to be going at the rate of 15 knots previous to the gate. She will be towed to-morrow morning by the Government tugs Confiance and Zephyr from the Sound to Hamoaze, where she will receive a pine mainmast belonging to Her Majesty's screw steam corvette Rattlesnake, 21, which is 34 inches in diameter, being six inches in excess of her present teak mast, which is sprung in two places. The telegraphic cable on board the Assaye, to be laid between Bussorah and Kurrachee, is 368 miles long, and weighs 1,472 tons. The three tanks containing it are placed so low in the hold that she rolls to excess. Some 40 tons of shot and shell, and some provisions stowed below, are to be raised to the 'tween decks. Mr. Woods, the electrician, in charge of the cable, has tested it to-day, and finds it uninjured."

This is an unfortunate mishap to a vessel laden with the sub-marine cable which the Home papers have been constantly assuring us was to be laid, and the telegraph in working order by the month of March next? We fear it will be March, or not far from it, ere the whole of the cable reach these shores.

Is not the Assaye our old acquaintance of that name, built for the Indian Navy in the Bombay Dockyard ten years ago?

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

3RD OCTOBER, 1863.

AT last Fortune so long unfaithful to the Confederates, "grins horribly a ghastly smile" on their victorious legions, over one of the bloodiest battle-fields of the war. In a creek known by the unmelodious name of Chickmaponga, a name so savagely Red—Indian that its very sound suggests scalps, General Bragg has won a crowning victory over General Rosecrans. It may indeed well be called a crowning victory. In such a battle, one would infer beforehand that all the advantages were with the Federal Commander. General Rosecrans is one of the few northern officers, whose operations have throughout shown good soldiership, and steady fortune. Hitherto he does not seem to have lost a single advantage that it was possible to take, out of the position in which he was placed. His battles were delivered with excellent spirit and force. What ground he gained, he steadily held, and still encroached. You will find in the Times of this week a long letter written by an officer in his army, which will give you a good idea of the spirit of his soldiers. His army was admirably composed. Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, the great States of the West, had sent the stout sons of the forest, and the rough riders of the prairie into its ranks. There was time enough to give them efficient military training, and they marched with the prestige of unshaken success. When Bragg fell back from Chattonooga, and Rosecrans gained this formidable position, it seemed as if "the araconda strategy"—the very name of which had been forgotten, was about to operate its original design, and crush together the vitals of the Confederacy. At this moment it is, that with one prodigious effort, gathering together all its force, the South has smitten the Federal General hip and thigh, and hurled him backwards from a field on which the dead fell, as the great ears of Indian corn often fall in their Western fields before their stalwart arms. The losses in the Battle of Chickmaponga are at least equal to those of the Battle of Gettysburg. But unlike Gettysburg, here is no drawn battle. The ground was chosen by the Federal General, and it is represented to have been a formidable position, not unlike that in which Meade withstood Lee. But in the latter battle, the Confederates carried the Federal works, broke their line, checked their reinforcements, and sent whole divisions pell-mell into each others ranks. It is the first instance in the war of a General offensive attack on either side, producing a decisive result. We do not yet know its course in detail, but we know enough to modify the estimate of General Bragg's glory. That officer has hitherto rather verified his unhappy name. He has said more than Southern Commanders are wont, and done less. Through a confused haze of telegrams, which produces somewhat the same effect as the actual smoke of the battle, we are conscious of those heavy sledge hammer blows with which Longstreet is used to smash his enemy's line of battle. On the left, the Right Reverend Father in God, Major General Leonidas Polk charges invincible at the head of his hickory-sinewed diocesans of Tennessee, a Bishop after the manner of the middle ages, to whom stout Julius would have sent a Cardinal's hat. He too, at Chickmaponga, wielded the sword of Gideon, and smote with the stroke of Sampson, until the creek ran red as Ramoth Gilead General Braxton Bragg is not very apparent in his battle. Can it be that all the subtle strong combinations, well-adjusted reinforcements, and masterly manœuvres, which produced so grand a result, are due to the genius of Lee? Mr. Reuter vaguely indicates his presence South wards, which is hard to be credited, with Meade in full force, fronting the army of Virginia on the Rapidan.

Thus it seems that the South, contrary to all recent calculation, will end another year of the war in the hour of victory. A few weeks more and General Meade will take the defence of Virginia out of their care, already heavy rains and storms vex the sticky soil in Meade's rear. Soon the great guns of the wintry gales will be as perilous behind the Monitors off Charleston bar as Fort Ripley's impregnable bastions, and Castle Pinkney's far-darting Columbiads in their front. Already the war stands still in Virginia and the seige at Charleston. The Confederates are reported to be very strongly posted on the Rapidan, and unless they have been seriously weakened in Virginia in order to win the great battle of the South West, it is likely that Meade, if he ventures to attack a position that has probably been made as strong as Fredrickburg, will have to fall back with little more glory than Burnside or Hooker. Moreover, great as were their exultations at the taking of the forts of the Morris Island, it is evident the Federals have not yet even seen the teeth of Charleston. The fire of Moultrie and Sullivan's Island so sweeps the site of Wagner that General Gilmore as yet makes no use of it. And stubborn Sumpter, teterrima causa belli, battered and flood-soaked still holds obstinately out. Finally, the expedition towards Texas which General Banks reluctantly dispatched in obedience to the peremptory orders of the President, has, in all its three divisions, been ignominiously repulsed. All these disasters and difficulties are soon discounted on the New York Exchange. Gold, which had lately fallen to 23 premium, after such agitated movements, as I can fancy the mercury may make with you when monsoon weather is coming on, bounded up, after Chickmaponga was first named in Wall street, to 40. Here the Confederates soon felt again a vague delicious flutter of hope. But confidence is a plant of slow growth in the bosom of the British stock-broker, and the rally of 4, which followed the first breath of the news, was imperfectly sustained when the city got time to shake its sapient head. The truth is the city originally took the confederate war at a rate, that caused its promoters a most, egregious degree of agreeable surprise, and the city has ever since looked at these coupons sulkily and with a vindictive disposition towards discount.

When I last wrote to you, confidence in the Confederacy was, I think, at its lowest ebb here. And it was destined to fall still lower. A few days after that date, Mr. Mason, the Southern Envoy gave Lord Russell notice that he had received orders from his Government to withdraw from England in consequence of the injustice with which this country continued to treat the claims of the South to recognition. Mr. Mason was ordered to proceed to France. This step was, I think, more widely felt than the journals expressed it, to be an insult to England, and a very injudicious step. The sense of the Government on the subject is reflected in Lord Russell's speech at Blairgowrie. A speech very different in its tone from that in which he proclaimed sometime ago that the North was fighting for Empire and the South for independence. I think you will read in this speech, with its elaborate defence of the extent of England's neutrality, its evident disposition to concede on the question of the vessels of war built at Liverpool. (This has since led to a report rather credited in the city that they will be detained until the Law is altered), and its highly magnificent anti-deluvian denunciation of negro slavery, I think, I say, that you will read in all this a sort of dawning suspicion on the part of a by no means far-sighted minister, that after all the North might eventually triumph, and that it was full time for a little Pilot (you remember Carlyle's figure) to see how he should tack and wear round accordingly. This tone was not rebuked by the country in general. The ardent sympathy with the South, which had hitherto existed, seemed disposed to follow the fortunes of the Cotton Loan. Had Charleston been taken, had Rosecrans been victorious, had Meade crossed the Rapidon, successes all of which seemed possible a fortnight ago, every one would have felt disposed to agree with Lord Russell, that the majority of the population of this country decidedly sympathised with the Federals.

As it is, the Southerns have taken so much measure of what we call our neutrality, as to concentrate all their attention on France; and the Emperor Napoleon has now two Confederate Plenipotentiaries instead of one paying him homage at Biarritz. This great turn of fortune in their favour has happened at an auspicious conjuncture, it may be. Today the Archduke Maximilian receives the Mexican deputation at his Palace of Miramas, over Trieste. There, by this time, a scion of the House of Hapsburgh has consented to revive the monarchy of Montezuma. The deputation will leave for Vienna on the 5th, will see the Emperor Napoleon at Paris on their way back, and will sail again for the new Empire on the 15th. But what message will they carry back to the Provisional Government of His Mexican Majesty? Every one expects that the new Empire and the new Republic will recognise each other forthwith, that if the United States refuses to consider this a reason for war with Mexico, then Mexico will at all events, serve the South in as good stead as Prussia served Russia during the Crimean war, thus rendering the blockade next to nugatory—but if the Cabinet of Washington be so mad as to add still more to their risks and difficulties, then France herself will fling her sword in the scale. All this is easily said, but of all the problems ever solved by the plotting brain of the third Napoleon, there is perhaps none so difficult. A war for Poland—that would be popular. A war in America—that might perhaps be made profitable. But a war in Poland, and one in, Mexico at the same moment! The first Napoleon in the palmiest hours of his pride might well shrink aghast at that.

Such are the speculations that fill men's minds, as we gradually awaken from the rustication of the recess. Of domestic news, there is literally none. Lord Russell's speech is the only event of any political importance, unless you feel annoyed to hear that Lord Palmerston insisted on Sir William Atherton's either taking the vacant Puisne Judgeship, or resigning, and that Sir William has accordingly resigned. Ministers are still absent from town. The Queen remains in Scotland, where the Prince and Princess of Prussia have just gone to visit her. But the Prince and Princess of Wales are expected at Malborough House this evening to meet the King of the Hellenes, who will attend the religious service at the Greek Church in the City, in full regal state tomorrow. Our public characters know no loftier subject when they address their constituents than the Steam Plough. English editors think of nothing but America; and Paris editors are driven to inverting philo-Polish interviews of foreign Ambassadors with Lord Russell in Downing steet, while the noble Lord's heart, or what serves him in place of that organ is still in the Highlands.

THE SQUALL ON LAST MONDAY NIGHT.—All Monday last the wind was very high blowing from the South West and evidently Bombay was visited with the tail end of the gale which lately occurred at Madras and Cochin. Although the wind was flowing very fresh, yet it continued steadily from one quarter, and neither damage, nor apprehensions for their safety were entertained for the shipping in the harbour, although one of the coasting steamers was obliged to keep up her steam all night to hold on to her anchorage. It was however, rather a perillous adventure to board any vessel in any of the harbour boats, as the sea was running high, and which increased in a considerable degree during the night, so much so, that the sea, about midnight, made a complete breach over the Apolia Pier; and as the Overland Mail steamer arrived in the harbour at about the time when the wind and sea was at the highest, any of the passengers who had the temerity to land then, must have experienced rather a rough passage to the shore, and those who were compelled to board the steamer, either on business or matters of interest, were, doutless, glad their perillous adventure terminated with no other harm than a good drenching from the salt spry

OFFICIOUSNESS REBUKED.—During the investigation of a case which eventually fell to the ground and the defendant acquitted in the Police Office yesterday, wherein a respectable Jew named Obediah Zachia was charged with having dishonestly become possessed of a large quantity of opium, the sepoys on duty at the Police Office removed the defendant from near the Solicitors' table where he was standing and placed him at the bar. His Worship having observed this, remarked that, it was a great piece of impertinence on the part of the policemen to do so. That he had observed the defendant standing from where he was removed by their impertinent officiousneas, and that if he had thought it requisite the defendant should be placed at the bar he would have so ordered it; as it was, they were guilty of a great piece of impertinence which he hoped would not occur again.

CHARGE OF ABETMENT OF A CONSPIRACY AGAINST MR. HIGGINS THE MUNICIPAL MARKET INSPECTOR.—Mr. Barton again preferred his application yesterday to the Acting Senior Magistrate for the permission of his client, Mr. Kerr of the Nassick Farm to lay an information against Mr. Higgins, the Assistant market Inspector for having conspired with other individuals unknown, to prevent the sale of good and sound meat in the new market, a desideratum of much value in Bombay. Mr. Barton added, that he would prove that on Friday last, Mr. Kerr's inspectors had a perfectly white, and good sound bullock slaughtered, and the meat in course of sale, when Mr. Higgins, at about nine o'clock in the morning produced the head of a bullock of a dark grey color covered with ulcers about the neck, and by having alleged that head as having belonged to the bullock slaughtered by Mr. Kerr's butchers, surreptitiously obtained an order from Major Curtis, one of the Municipal Commissioners, to prevent the sale of Mr. Kerr's meat.

His Worship observed that the applicant may have a summons against Mr. Higgins for the abetment of conspiracy, which having been accepted, one was ordered to be issued returnable after the vacation.

BEITKUL AND ANKOLA ROAD.

Public Works Department, Office of the Executive Engineer, North Canara. Sedashegur, 3rd September 1863.

TO THE SUPERINTENDING ENGINEER, SOUTHERN CIRCLE.

SIR,—I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your No. 4498 of 21st August.

2. The roads in the neighbourhood of Sedashegur have doubtless suffered injury during the rains; it is usual for all new roads to do so and was anticipated so far back as October 1862, in the 10th para of your No. 2985 to the Chief Engineer with reference to the criticisms foreseen by Colonel Kennedy and which appear to have now reached him. The damage that has occurred has been brought to your notice in the monthly reports; it is not so much as I anticipated it would have been, arranged in the order directed by the Secretary to Government. The following report will shew the amount of injury occurred.

BEITKUL TO COMMENCEMENT OF BHINGYBAY GHAT.—The ascent of the Ghat commences at Beitkul close to the Public Works Storeyard and terminates near the village of Bhingy no damage has been done to this beyond one or two landslips on the summit of the Ghat, which it did not take long to clear away.

2. ACROSS BHINGYBAY.—On this portion most injury has occurred throughout the whole time, the whole embankment had been completed and partially covered with indifferent moorum, no good moorum being obtainable for the greater portion of the road. The soil of the bay consists of light friable earth, and on the setting in of the rains a considerable portion of it was washed away. The cross drains being gradually widened out or eaten into and a small bridge on piles rendered impassable even here in order to shew that the actual damage, which may have appeared to amateur criticisers was not so much as may have been stated, I may observe that, that the embankment has been entirely repaired for some days and the moorum-ing of the whole more than one half completed.

From BHINGIBA to URGAY.—This portion consists entirely of Ghat work, and the damage occurred consists of land Slips which have been considerable in some few cases, but the whole of which are now cleared away. The slips occurred from above and in not a single instance was the road itself washed away.

The bridges on the Ghat have suffered, they were all in an incomplete state and the rains setting in early they could not be completed. They consist of rough rubble and chunam masonary built by the Convicts and certainly appeared excessively strong, I was surprised myself at their failure, as also was the officer in charge of Convicts, Captain Ker, who has had some experience in this sort of work with convicts; from personal observation during heavy rain I arrived at the conclusion that by far too much water-way had been allowed and if dry stone drains had been erected they would sooner have been completed and would not have suffered so much; the damage I place in some cases to the foundations, which I do not think had been excavated quite on the level, but generally to their unfinished state and the early setting in of the rains; such damage as has occurred will be repaired in the current month.

4. FROM URGAY TO AHMEDAHALLIP.—On this I am at a loss to understand what reports have reached you. The road consists entirely of flat country, some portions embanked and portions on the level of the ground; I do not think the embankment is high enough in some portions but really cannot say that damage has occurred, the whole distance has been partially moorumed but no drains are built, merely cross cuts left for the water to pass off, the water coursing along the side of the road and passing off by these cross cuts have of course not entirely left the new embankment intact, but the damage has been so slight that it is not worth alluding to.

5. FROM AHMEDHALLIP TO AORSA.—As far as the road passes over flat country the same remarks as I have just given may apply to this road. There are two small ghats, however, which have inconsiderably suffered from land slips; here again the road has not given way and the slips from above were repaired and cleared away, as they occurred.

Digitized with financial assistance from the Government of Maharashtra on 27 June, 2017

FROM AORSA TO JUNCTION OF ANKOLA ROAD.—I have not yet received my assistant's report upon this portion; up to the end of July it was uninjured, and I do not think can have suffered during the past month. The soil here is harder and the ground higher than the rest of the Beitkul and Ankola road, and it was moreover, I believe, just constructed; I expect to hear shortly from Mr. Konigbut and feel satisfied his report will be satisfactory and should it not be so, I will of course report the matter to you.

HYDERGUR BRANCH, KONAY TO SEYWARREE.—This has been in progress during the rains and is now nearly completed, in a moorummed embankment 18 feet wide; no damage has occurred here at all.

SEYWARRA TO AHMEDALLY —On this which consists entirely of the road over the Hydergur Ghat no damage has occurred at all, a party of ten men have been employed constantly moving over it and working here and there to keep it in good order.

(Signed) R. J. MAUNSELL, Captain,
Acting Executive Engineer, North Canara.

Public Works Department, Office of Executive Engineer,
North Canara, Sedashegur 9th September 1863.
To the Superintending Engineer, Southern circle.

SIR.—I have the honor to forward the monthly reports of August, of [illegible] in progress here, in the following order.

BEITKUL AND ANKOLA ROAD.—The Ghat commencing this road and rising from the store yard at Beitkul has been widened out in several places, large masses of stone fallen during the rains have been removed off the road and the projecting rocky portions blasted away. The damage done to the embankment across the Binghy flat has been repaired and moorum laid along more than half the distance. Blasting rock and cutting laterite for the culverts has progressed. The sides of the high embankment on the South side of the Ghat have been turfed; a tramway for the collection of rubble and laterite for the drains and for metalling this portion has been commenced.

Upon the Urgay ghat the work during the first month has been widening out the road to its full width; removing land slips which occurred during the rains; cutting side gutters and laying down a foot of moorum where the subsoil of the ghat is soft.

Upon the flat between Urgay and Chindia 492 running feet of roadway has been moorummed, 21 feet in width by one foot in depth. There still remains rather more than a mile to complete this portion. Four laterite drains, 3 of two openings each 2 feet span, and, of one opening (same span) have been completed. From Chindia towards Ankola the coolees have increased during the month and a fair amount of work has been done, chiefly moorumming. The Herwado Ghat and other portions damaged by the rains have been repaired; upon this portion of the road a little more than a mile still remains to be moorummed. Carts have not yet returned to work here, but they are daily expected to do so. Six culverts have been built and two are under construction.

Upon the Bellikery bridge the rains have precluded any work being done, and increase to the force of means is daily looked for, when work will be resumed.

Upon the Arbyle and Ankola road the number of coolees has also increased and a good deal of repairs has been done. The portion from the Junction of the Beitkul and Ankola road is now under repairs. Six tunnels are under construction. Upon this road during the past month the average daily labour has been, 2729 coolees, 353 convicts, 41 sappers, 41 masons and 7 Carts.

KONEY TO AHMEDULLY.—1806 running feet of roadway between Koney and Seswudda have been completely moorummed, 18 feet wide and 1 foot in depth. There still remains about 800 running feet of roadway to complete this portion. A small portion of this road threatened during the rains had been secured by a dry stone retaining wall. The remaining portion of this road consists of the Hydergur ghat which has been maintained during the rains passable for traffic, and is now in very good order.

ROAD FROM BEITKUL TO KONAY.

WHARF ROAD.

This work has progressed very satisfactorily. The whole of the spaces between pier points and the Manchester Company pier have been filled in. A rough substantial wall circling the cove between the above named points has been completed. The moorumming of the Allegaddy embankment has been widened out by six additional feet and one half of it has been metalled. The metalling of the whole road to the width of 24 feet is in progress and will be completed by the end of this month. The arrangement of labour employed has been, 500 Coolies, 80 drillers, 30 sappers and 215 prisoners.

At the permanent bridge at Konay, the inclement weather prevented recommencement of work till late in the month. 12 piles have been driven and a quantity of rubble masonry collected for the South abutment. The temporary bridge has some time since been completed and is in very good order.

WHARF WALL.

Dressing stones for the coping course of the wall conveying stones to the site and continuing the filling in, in rear of the wharf wall has progressed during the month; raising the road-way by embankment along the existing portion has been carried on. The daily labour employed has been 29 stone dressers, 26 coolees and 60 convicts.

LIGHT-HOUSE.

The Monsoon has not permitted work to be carried on during the past month here. In the course of a week I hope to recommence work and it will not take long to finish the building.

It is with much satisfaction I am able to report that a party of coolees are now working at Beitkul by contract; I hope by the end of September, 500 more may be at work, and the system gradually introduced throughout the district. I have the honor &c.

J. R. MAUNSELL, Captain,
Acting Executive Engineer North Canara.

LAW.

HIGH COURT.—APPELLATE SIDE.

Thursday, 22nd October 1863.

(BEFORE THE HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE ERSKINE, MR. JNSTICE WFSTROPP, and MR. JUSTICE TUCKER.

DACOITY.—Narunnoo Poka, Sooba Pooka, Beera Naga Gowra, and Pandoorung Untay Purbhoo, were tried before Mr. R. White, Session Judge of North Canara (Karwar), for having committed docoity at Khundugar, in the district of Karwar, on or about the 24th day of February 1863.

The following is the Session Judges finding on the evidence:—That the house of the complainant Urshimbhut was attacked at night by a gang of dacoits on the date mentioned in the charge, and certain property of his and one of the inmates of his house taken off by them is amply proved by the evidence for the prosecution. It is further established, the Court considers, that among the dacoits were three of the accused persons, vizt. Narunoo, Sooba, and Pandoorung. The complainant and his brother Venkutbhut and sister Trumuka, and also his servant Pootheghery and Poothegery's wife Sooree, all, depose to Narunoo having been one of the dacoits, and narate some of his proceedings in the commission of the dacoity and all, excepting Sooree, depose, too, that they recognized Soopa among the gang. That Pandoorung was one of the gang is testified to by the complainant, and Poothegery, who state that he was one of the two dacoits who remained in the verandah of complainant's house after the rest of the gang entered inside the house, and that sometime subsequently, on being called to by some one inside, he, with the other dacoit, left the verandah and joined their companions, and Venkutrambhut deposes to the fact of the two dacoits in question having gone into the house, and some one from inside calling out to one of them "Pandoorung." The complainant gave information of the dacoity to the patel Natphegery on the morning after it occurred, and stated that he had recognized accused the Narrunoo, Sooba, and Pandoorung among the dacoits. He also gave a list, the same day, of the property which, he said, the docoits had made off with, including, among other articles, two copper vessels of the description of those now produced. On the following day the house in which Narrunoo and Sooba, who are brothers reside together, was searched, and the two copper vessels before the court were found in it, and were identified, as they now are, by complainant and all the witnesses whose evidence has been above referred to, as belonging to him. Sooba asserts that these two articles are his own, but he has adduced no evidence in support of the assertion, and it seems doubtful that a person of his class and apparent circumstances should be possessed of any copper vessels at all. On the same day, early in the morning, some beads, now produced, belonging to the two necklaces of Sooree's which Narrunoo is alleged where torn from off her neck, were found in a bag of his, but this fact as complainant states that the bag was in the custody of a police peon the whole of the preceding night, affords but very doubtfnl evidence against Narrunoo. The accused Pandoorang, who resides at Hoossoor, a village about one and a half kos from complainant's, appears to have been apprehended on the Friday next after the dacoity. His house was not searched, and the next day, or the day after it, he was released, and one Pondoorung of a neighbouring village called Andlay, arrested instead of him, and finally, forwarded with the case, to the Subordinate Magistrate. The Patel states that the accused Pandoorung was released because both complainant and Poothegery, when he was shown to them declared that he was not the Pandoorung whom they had recognized among the dacoits, and that Andlay Pandoorung, when afterwards confronted with them, was identified by them as the Pandoorung in question. These statement of the Patel, are denied by both complainant and Poothegery, and are, in the Court's opinion, false. It does not appear why Andlay Pandoorung, in particular, should have been at once arrested on the accused Pandoorung being identified, and as complainant and Poothegery had stated to the Patel, the village of the Pandoorung whom, they said, they had recognized and complainant also his caste, and the accused Pandoorung is well known to of both of them. The Patel's story, has, evidently been invented to save the accused Pandoorung, (who, it may be remarked, appears in better circumstances than the rest of the accused persons), from the consequences of his guilt. It is to be noticed that the complainant and his witness depose that the dacoits had not their faces, at all concealed. This may have been the case, but it certainly seems somewhat improbable that they should have been so incautious as to go with lighted torches, and plunder a house, to the people of which they were known, without in the least disguising themselves. The probability is that their faces were disguised, but only partially, so as to admit of some of them being recognized, and complainant, if the Patel is to be believed on this point, stated at first that their faces were blackened. Complainant and his witnesses if this surmise he correct, must have thought that their evidence as to the identification of any of the dacoits would be discredited should they depose that the dacoits faces were at all concealed, and for this reason, have deposed to a contrary effect. But though the complainant and his witnesses may have thought fit to sacrifice truth to expediency in this particular, the Court would not on that account, disbelieve their evidence as to the recognition of the accused persons whose cases have been above considered. As to accused No. 3 Beera, he is identified as one of the dacoits, by complainant, Poothegery, Venkutbhut and Trimukka, but though they all have deposed truly against him, it would be unsafe to rely on their testimony on the subject, because complainant himself, allows he did not mention Beera's name, when he gave information of the dacoits to the patel, and the evidence of the witnesses, it is to be borne in mind was not taken until some weeks after the dacoity occurred. Complainant states, indeed, that he mentioned Beera's village and her father's name, but the patel does not corroborate this statement, and there is no written evidence in its support. The court, therefore acquits the accused Beera of the charge. According to Poothegery, Nawnoo and Sooba gave him some of the blows from which he says, he was disabled from work for a month, but he never deposed before giving evidence in this court, that Sooba had beaten him, and as to Nawnoo he would seem to be in error, as complainant and all the other witnesses declare that Narrunoo had only a torch. There appears, therefore, no ground for making any difference between Narrunoo and Sooba's punishment and that of Pandoorung. The Court concurring with the Assessors finds that Narrunoo and Sooba are guilty of the offence specified in the charge, namely, that Narrunoo and Sooba have committed the offence of dacoity, and have thereby committed an offence punishable under Sec. 395 of ibe Indian Penal Code; and the court directs that the said Narrunoo and Sooba each undergo rigorous impisonment for four years. The court concurring with the Assessors finds that Beera is not guilty of the offence specified in the charge against him, namely; that Beera has committed the offence of dacoity, and has thereby committed an offence punishable under Sec. 395 of the I. P. Code, and the Court directs that the said Beera be discharged. The Court concurring with one of the assessors, finds that Pandoorung is guilty of the offence specified in the charge, namely, that Pandoorung has committed the offnce of daeoity, and has there by committed an offence punishable under See. 395 of the I. P. Code; and the Court directs that the said Pandoorung undergo rigorous imprisonment for four years.

The Court considers it right to communicate to the Magistrate of the District its opinion on the Patel's conduct, and would suggeste that it should be ascertained who ordered Hoosoor Pandoorung's release and Andlay Pandurung's arrest, and that the person or persons, by whom the order was given be called on to explain the proceeding. The Court has also to bring to the Magistrate's notice that the accused persons in this case were detained in the custody of the police, for several days, without as far as the Court can discover, any special order from a Magistrate. On the above conviction and sentence a petition was submitted on behalf of the prisoners to the Hon'ble Judges of the Court who passed the following resolution on it:—

RESOLUTION OF THE HIGH COURT.—The petition is rejected.

GENERAL SAMMARY.

(Home News, Oct 3.)

POLITICAL life is at a standstill in England during the first week of October, and grave must be the emergency which at this period would draw our statesmen from the moors to their bureaux in London. The pheasant at this juncture is a more important bird than the eagle himself, whether he be a denizen of Russia or Prussia; and liberty shrieks in vain on the plains of Poland, while the English legislator is tracking his game in the Scotch highlands. Her Majesty is at Balmoral, where she has been joined by the Prince and Princess of Prussia; Earl Russell has been making a tour in the north, and addressing large audiences on affairs in general; Lord Palmerston, whose youthfulness improves with age, has been alternating from day to day between town and country, the most cheerful and active of all the Ministers; many idle and roving member of the Lower House have been delivering speeches to their constituents, or descanting upon bucolic affairs at agricultural dinners; the Social Science Congress is already gathering in Edinburgh; and half-a-dozen vacancies in Parliament, occasioned by deaths, or other changes, are awakening a brick electioneering excitement in different parts of the country. It is an unlucky moment for the Poles. Their case has come to a crsis just at a time when nobody can attend to its Politics are at the same deadlock in paris as in London. The Court is at Biarritz, and most of the ministers are out of town. Nothing in fact is doing in reference to this vital question, uppn the solution of which the peace of Europe depends. It is said that the Emperor is very chary of communications on the subject with his advisers; and the flying reports that have lately found their way into the journals, about changes in the London embassy, and a correspondence between the two cabinets, are contradicted. The only glimpse we have had into the probable future is afforded to us in the remarkable observation made by Earl Russell at Blairgowre, to the effect that as Russia has failed to fulfil the condition of the treaty of Vienna, she has forfeited her title to Poland. It is impossible to form any estimate of the practical value of this weighty sentence. If it express the views of the Cabinet, its importance cannot be overated. If it express merely the opinion of the Foreign Secretary, we shall not know how much that is worth till Miniters shall be in their places in Parliament.

In the meanwhile Poland bleeds at every pore, and the sympathies of the Christian world are expended upon her in vain. The struggle continues to be prosecuted with a spirit of heroic devotion that mounts with the increasing difficulties of the unequal contest. Russia has now openly resolved to give no quarter to the insurgents, and butchers them in cold blood with a barbaric ferocity worthy of Marloe's Tamberlaine. The savage deeds that are being perpetrated in Warsaw under the fiend Berg, and in Wilna under Mouravieff, read like the stupendous fables of ogres and other imaginary monsters that used to be invented in story books to frighten children. When we read these accounts of houses sacked; of property, the accumulation of long lines of families, given up to plunder and destruction; of women outraged under the most revolting circumstances; of men, without trial, ignorant of the charges brought against them, and in multitudes of cases innocent of them, shot, hung, imprisoned, or deported to Siberia, we ask ourselves with a shudder, are these events really happening in this nineteenth century within a few days' journey of our own homes, or is it all a horrible nightmare of the imagination?

The approach of winter renders this state of things still more terrible to contemplate. Even if the three Powers were disposed to embark in a war with Russia, they could do nothing till spring; and before spring comes the insurrection will probably be at an end. Most of the correspondents, who describe the prospects of the Poles from personal observation on the spot, declare that it is impossible for them to hold out much longer. The Poles themselves, even in this extremity, are so full of hope and courage, that they ask nothing of Europe but recognition as belligerents. They declare that this simple act, which involves neither cost nor quarrel, will suffice to enable them to achieve their independence with their own hands. The advantages of recognition are by no means so obvious to other nations as they appear to be to the Poles; but, however that may be, it is evident that the three Powers have not yet agreed upon their course. Recognition has been talked of, and advocated in high places: but we imagine that before the English Government will go even that length, it must be sustained by stronger demonstrations of public support than it has yet received.

IN our last a battle was stated to be impending on the plains of Tennessee between the Confederate General Bragg and the Federal General Rosecrans. The battle has since taken place, with the result which the Federals certainly did not anticipate. It occupied three days, nor does the scattering of the troops in flight and pursuit seem to have terminated even then. In the end the Federals were utterly routed, their loss being estimated at 12,000 killed, wounded and missing; and Rosecrans was last heard of endeavouring to concentrate his forces at Chattanooga. This is the mere outline of an engagement which cannot fail to exercise an important influence in the progress of the war.

The military masses collected in other quarters appear to be almost motionless. There is nothing known with any approach to accuracy of the situation, strength, or designs of the army under Lee; and, except that Meade has made a forward movement on the Rapidan, the great army of the Potomac is involved in like obscurity. There are, as usual, sundry reports, but nobody, even in America, knows what amount of credit to attach to them. Some say that Lee is still intent upon Washington; others that he has abandoned the Rappahannock with a large portion of his forces, leaving General Johnston in the command behind him; some say that he is gone in the direction of Richmond; others that his purpose is to join Beauregard at Charleston. At Charleston notwithstanding the fiery engines that were prepared for its destruction, the siege lingers mysteriously. The movement from New Orleans into Texas has been slightly interrupted by the caputre and destruction of some of the Federal gunboats; but the troops continued their advance in three columns. The suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act by President Lincoln has been received by the people with sublime apathy, and its legality, with retrospective action, has been affirmed from the bench.

THE breach between Denmark and Germany yawns wider and wider every day. The Federal Diet has almost unanimously adopted the recommendation of the united committees in favour of the occupation of Holsten; and Denmark, forewarned of the issue, is making active preparations by sea and land for defence. Unless some influential interposition should speedily take place, war cannot be averted. Sweden has come heartily to the aid of her friend and ally, and the whole Scandinavian chivalry may be said to be called to arms. Yet, in spite of thes einauspicious signs, it is difficult to believe that hostilities will be permitted to break out upon a question which, complicated as it may be by dynastic and other cross-purposes, is certainly capable of a reasonable settlement. As England has already taken a prominent part in the negotiations, here mediations would hardly be accepted by the Federal Diet; but the wise King of the Belgians happens just now not to be particularly occupied; and everbody, we presume, would be satisfied with his award.

THE French are making rapid head in Mexico, if their own reports may be credited. Juarez is losing all his influence, and his followers are dissolving into air; Doblado is about to withdraw, and seek a refuge in the United States; and San Luis Potosi, the heart of the national disaffection, is ready to tender its allegiance to the incoming government. To crown the triumph the Indian population are said to be unanimous in support of the Archduke Maximillian; and the Archduke himself is reported to be in a state of exultation at the prospect of the golden age that lies before him in the new world. In the midst of all this jubilation, one naturally asks why is General Forey recalled? What has he done, or what has happened, that he should be superseded by Bazaine? Perhaps he has resigned; perhaps he is called home to higher honours; perhaps he has fallen out of favour, and is removed in a fit of displeasure. Whatever it may be, it casts a shadow over the glory of the new conquest in Mexico, which nothing can dispel but a satisfactory explanation.

A serious difference has arisen between General Montebello, the French general commanding in Rome, and the Pontifical authorities. Certain Roman gendarms had fired on an Italian officer on the frontier, and were not only protected in spite of the remonstrances of General Montebello, but promoted for an act which the French commander regarded as a disgraceful violation of good faith. General Montebello has issued an order of the day to his soldiers, in which he condemns severely the act of the gendarmes, and comments with marked sternness on the conduct of the government in protecting them. This is very like one of those little dark specks in the sky, that presently grow into a great cloud. Italy is watching it with all her eyes.

The Ionian Islands may be considered to have given an unanimous vote in favour of annexation to Greece. The votes of two of the principal islands are known, and no doubt is entertained about the others.

ROYAL VISITORS IN EDINBURGH.

(Globe, Oct. 3.)

The Prince and Princess of Wales left Abergeldie Castle on Thursday morning at half-past nine o'clock, and posted to Aboyne, which they reached about eleven, and from that point they commenced their railway journey to Edinburgh, travelling in a saloon carriage attached to the ordinary train. At Ferryhill Junction, Perth, Larbert, and other places where stoppages were made, there were large assemblages, and the Prince and Princess were received with cordial cheering. The train, which was heavy, reached Waverley-bridge station at 6,47, nearly half an hour behind its appointed time. At the platform the Crown Prince and Princess of Prussia waited the arrival of their distinguished relatives, and the Lord Provost and magistrates, Major-Gen. Walker and staff, the Earl of Kintore, Mr. Sheriff Gordon, and other gentlemen were present. There was no guard of honour as on the last occasion, the high constables being intrusted with keeping the platform, but an escort of the 3d Hussars waited outside. An affectionate meeting took place between the royal party, who left the station in one carriage, amid the loud cheering of a numerous and rather eager crowd. Darkness having fallen during the delay of the train's arrival, the many hundreds waiting outside could see nothing but the carriage which contained the illustrious visitors, whom, however, they welcomed in a very enthusiastic manner. The carriage proceeded to the Douglas Hotel, which was reached at a few minutes after seven o'clock. Apartments had been taken there for two nights for the Prince and Princess of Wales and for their suite, consisting of the Hon. Mrs. Grey, Lieutenant General Knollys, the Hon. M. Meade, and the Hon. Col. Keppel.

PRESENTATION OF AN ADDRESS TO THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council of Edinburgh attended at Holyrood Palace yesterday, for the purpose of presenting an address to the Prince of Wales which, at a meeting held in the morning, they had voted. At 12 o'clock the Prince and Princess of Wales arrived at Holyrood in an open carriage. They were loudly cheered by a large assemblage of persons. The civic address was received in the throne-room. The Lord Provost introduced the corporation, and the City Clerk read the address, which, after offering the warmest welcome to the Prince and Princess, proceeds as follows with regard to the Princess:—"We earnestly trust that her Royal Highness may have enjoyed and benefited by her residence in Scotland, and that the associations of her Highland home may be such as she may recall with satisfaction and renew with pleasure. We hail her presence in this old Palace of Holyrood, associated as it is with the most stirring incidents of our national history, in which the destinies of our Royal House were long centuries ago intertwined with those of Denmark, as they now happily are. Kindred in race to that from which her Royal Highness has sprung, the people of Scotland have rejoiced in the union which your Royal Highness has formed; and rich as you are in the enjoyment of a noble heritage of love and veneration derived from your illustrious parents, as well as in the possession of personal qualities which have commanded the admiration and love of a great and free people, we earnestly hope and pray that you may be endowed with every other gift and grace which can adorn your exalted station, and fit you for the discharge of its high duties.

The Prince read the following reply:—

"Lord Provost and Gentlemen,—I thank you for your address and for the kind terms in which you have alluded to my residence among you while pursuing my studies in Holyhood Palace—a palace associated with so many interesting events in your history. I have also to add the Princess's thanks to mine for the sentiments you have expressed towards her and towards her country. I beg you to believe that my recollections of Edinburgh are among the most agreeable of my life, and that these early impressions have been forcibly strengthened by the hearty welcome which the Princess and myself have received on our return from the Highlands, a visit which will ever be attended with the most pleasing associations. I cannot but record my gratitude for the tribute you have paid to the Queen and my much lamented father; and it will be impossible for either the Princess or myself to entertain any but the warmest feelings for your city, its institutions, and its interests."

The Committee of Ladies were then admitted to present the gift of the ladies of Edinburgh. Mrs. H. G. Lawson made the presentation, and read the following address:—

"TO HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

May it please your Royal Highness,—The ladies of Edinburgh are glad to have this opportunity of testifying their loyalty and devotion to her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen and the Royal Family. They desire to express their warmest congratulations on the marriage of your Royal Highness with His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and they pray your Royal Highness's acceptance of this gift as a token of the joy with which you are welcomed to this ancient capital.

The Princess briefly expressed her thanks and admiration of the gift.

In the afternoon the Prince and Princess drove out to Dalkeith House. The Prince and Princess honoured the Lord Provost by dining at his house with a select company. The house was beautifully decorated, and his lordship afterwards held an evening party. Their Royal Highnesses were warmly cheered on their way to the Lord Provost's

They were to leave to-day (Saturday) by the London express train, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

THE CROWN PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF PRUSSIA.

The Crown Prince and Princess of Prussia left Waverly station yesterday morning at a quarter past nine o'clock by the ordinary train for the north, en route to Balmoral, on a visit to her Majesty the Queen. They are accompanied by their infant children, the Princes Frederick William and Henry and the Princess Victoria, and by the Countess Hohenthal. Lord Charles Fitzroy, &c. After breakfast yesterday their Royal Highnesses drove out from the Douglas Hotel, and having made some purchases of Scottish jewellery and tartans, and driven through some of the principal streets, they paid a vist to the Castle. They were received at the New Barracks there by the Fort Major, who conducted them through the Crown-room, in which the Scottish regalia are kept, Queen Mary's rooms, and St. Margarets Chapel. Their Royal Highnesses returned to the hotel about two o'clock by way of High-street and North-bridge. The Lord Provost, the Prussian Consul, and other gentlemen had the honour of waiting upon the Prince and Princess, and Earl Russell, who was staying for a few hours at the hotel, on his way from Meikleour to Minto House, Roxburghshire, had also an interview with their Royal Highnesses. At half-past three the Prince and Princess again drove out, in order to visit Holyrood Palace. There they were shown through the royal apartments, and they also visited the Picture Gallery, Queen Mary's room, and the Royal Chapel, and took a walk through the grounds. Leaving by the park entrance, their Royal Highnesses went round the Queen's Drive by way of St. Margaret'se Loch, Dunsappie and St. Leonard's, returning to town about half-past five o'clock. At a quarter past six they proceeded to the station to wait the arrival of the Prince and Princess of Wales, in whose company they spent the greater part of the evening in the hotel. In the course of the afternoon the infant children of the Prince and Princess were taken out for an airing. The Prince of Wales was present at the departure of the Crown Prince.

Prince Alfred is expected to arrive in Edinburgh from Balmoral on Tuesday next and take up his abode in Holyrood Palace, where he is to reside for several months in the prosecution of his studies. His Royal Highness is to attend the meetings of the Social Science Congress, which opens on Wednesday next.

THE POLISH QUESTION.

(Globe, Oct. 3.)

PARIS, Oct. 3.

THE Courrier du Dimanche of to-day, in an article on the Polish question, says:—"The negotiations between Paris and London have not yet terminated, and we can state that the essential bases of the preliminary negotiations entered into do not sensibly differ from the conclusions drawn by Earl Russell in his speech at Blairgowrie respecting the consequences of the non-execution of the treaties of 1815 by Russia."

The Courrier du Dimanche adds:—"If, as is probable, the negotiations have a favourable result, it would not necessarily follow that France and England would recognize the Poles as belligerents."

The article concludes by asserting that the French Government, always desirous of preserving an European character to the Polish question, would not wish, by separating herself from Austria, to break the concord between the Powers.

PARIS, Oct. 3.

The Courrier du Dimanche also publishes an account of the negotiations and incidents connected with the scheme of sending Count Walewski as French Ambassador to London, and adds:—

"This scheme is at present abandoned, but it is believed that it will shortly be again taken up."

VIENNA, Sept. 30.

The latest intelligence asserts that the Emperor Napoleon made the following statement to certain persons:—That on receipt of the news of a large insurrectionary corps having taken possession of a fortified place, and the commander of that corps possessing the talents required of a militarily-educated general, he would not delay the recognition of the Poles as belligerents for an instant."

THORN, Oct. 3.

An order of the day of the revolutionary Town Captain of Warsaw, dated 1st instant, announced that the attempt upon the life of General Berg took place by order of the National Government, This measure was adopted with the view of compelling General Berg to declare his policy of extermination, which he would otherwise have carried out gradually and imperceptibly.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 3.

The Moniteur of to-day says:—"The illness of M. Billault is nothing but a passing indisposition, which has never given the least cause for uneasiness."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Friday Evening.

If nothing else has come of all the diplomatic iuk spilt between Gortschakoff and his trio of correspondents, one grand residuum is formally announced as precipitated to the bottom of the whole business, viz., the complete pulverisation of the Vienna Treaties, reduced to a caput mortuum past all power of resuscitation. This fact has now been proclaimed in the Senate of St. Petersburg, as well as at the Town Hall of Blairgowrie; at Paris it had long been taken for granted, and Vienna herself could lend her name no longer to a sham so palpable. Adverse possession is the only title to Russian tenure, not only of the Archduchy of Warsaw, but of adjacent territories; and Czar Alexander is fully alive to the contingencies of such holding. He is now reported at the Navy Arsenal of Ntcolaieff intent on expediting the launch of sundry vessels, the dimensions of which form no part of any treaty stipulations; nor unless they carry guns, are they debarred from being afloat on the Black Sea, or passing Dardanelles. It is not in the docks of the River Mersey alone that ship-building of this sort can (in a constructive sense) be carried on without actual infringement of International legality; and our ancient ally the Turk, may have to be appealed, to, as guardian of the Bosphorus. Indeed, already Paris politicians have had their attention awakened by the long conference held, last Wednesday, by Drouyn de Lhuys with the Sultan's Ambassador, Djemet Pasha; and if France is to take up definitively the cudgels for the Poles, it is confidently counted on that oue auxiliary Power at least will be found willing to lend a hand.

We hear to-day of a protest, issued by Prince Czartoriski, against the desperate but inevitable resolve of the insurgent committee calling Mieroslawski into active service, and, consequently, unchaining the revolutionary element as a forlorn hope and imperative necessity. If the "eagles" are too craven hearted for the encounter, the "vultures" have a claw and beak not less formidable, and, perhaps more fitted for the work of the coming winter. Protocols and pastorals have been found equally inoperative; the so-called revolutionists may turn out to be not so black as they are painted: and if negroes are called out at an extremity on both sides of the Transatlantic struggle, there is no reason why those European blackamoors should not be let loose on the Kalmucks brought hither from Tartary. Hesitating Girondins would have never saved France from the "partition" with which the despots at Pilnitz had the srrogauce to threaten this country at the crisis of its great destinies.

The Debats to-day has the malice to draw attention on what fell from Marshal Forey in his speech at the Mexican banquet, where he laboured to show the notables and other intelligent guests who listened to his oracles, that republican institutions were totally unsuited to their natural characteristies and individul as well as collective penculiaritics. He laid it down as an axiom borrowed from Montesquieu, that "no republican Government could exist where there was no basis of public and private virtue," and utterly unconscious of the implied sarcasm. proceeded to infer that a common wealth had no locus standi among them. The best of the joke is that the Moniteur registers the hearty concurrence of his hearers in the logical conclusions of the gallant orator.

It would appear that the deputation, after a short stay at Munich, and still shorter at Vienna, has reached Trieste, and has, by this time, found the object of its mission. General Well, the most substantial name in the lot, is an old French officer who fought at Waterloo. Padre Miranda, who acts the part of Samuel, and brings the snointing cruet for the new Saul, is not metaphoriclly but in plain fact a Jesuit of long practical experience as missionary among the native tribes of Mexico, whose notions are all monarchial. In failure of any issue from the marriage of the new Emperor, the branch of Tuscany is to enjoy reversion of the throne, and the son of ex-Grand Duke Leopold goes out with Ferdinand Maximilian.

In mentioning (Globe of Thursday) the extinctions of the Spanish dukedom of Hijar, the privilege enjoyed by grandees of that family, viz., a claim on the royal wardrobe as set forth in that day's letter from Paris, this claim was erroneously stated to date from Philip II.

It is of far more remote origin, going back to the reign of Juan II., father of Isabella the Great, and arose from an incident that occurred Jan. 6, 1441. Don Roderigo de Rivades, ths founder of the Hijars, saved the life of Juan II., whom a well-organized band of conspiring nobles made sure of kifling at a Court banquet. Roderigo feigned a message to be privately delivered to the King in his royal closet, and while closeted with his sovereign revealed the plot, exchanging clothea with him, and thus facilitating his escape, which otherwise would have been difficult. The impatient grandees broke into the Cabinet and murdered, as they thought, their royal victim, in memory of which act of chivalrous loyalty the descendants of Roderigo because vested with the privilege as aforesaid; but the ladies of the family commuted the King's wearing apparel for that of the Queen for the time being.

M. Billault is reported seriously illl at his country residence near Nantes.

MARIE ANTOINETTE'S NECKLACE.

(Spectator.)

CAMILLE DESMOULINS being in the year 1792 reminded of an event which took place before the States-General were convoked in 1789, pointedly remarked, "Oh, that was before the deluge!" And truly enough the French people invariably date their new state of existence from the great revolution which swept a whole world away, as it were, and gave birth to a renovated society. In spite of Thierry's researches and Tocqueville's arguments to that powerful political convulsion they attribute whatever is grand in their country, whatever is weak in their organization. It may be well to read in school-books and novels of ancient kings and time-honoured feuds; but, as far as the France of the nineteenth century is concerned, all these stories refer to the epoch "before the deluge." It was, therefore, with some degree of curiosity, not unmixed with bewildering amazement, that the civil tribunal of Paris had, a few days ago, to listen to the pleadings in a law-suit which turned entirely on one of these ante diluvian events. It sounded like a voice from the nether world, like an echo from the grave and the scaffold, this case in which some of the most far-famed names in history be it for good or for evil, were handled by unfeeling barristers and shrewd attorneys. Queen Marie Antoinette, Cardinal de Rohan, the Duke d'Enghien, even Louis XVI., and the Congress of Vienna, not to speak of minor luminaries like Cagliostro, the Countess de Lamotte, and Mademoiselle d'Oliva, were mentioned in quite an off-hand manner by the glib tongues which are bent on making the law alternately clear or dim, according as it suits their purpose. And all that on account of a claim of two millions of francs set up by the heirs of Nicolas Gabriel Deville, Secretary of Luis XVI., against the heirs of Louis Rene Edouard Rohan, Cardinal, Grand Almoner of France, Prince-Bishop of Strasbourg, Landgrave of Alsace, Prince of the German Empire, Abbot of St. Vaast, and, above all, the possessor of a princely fortune.

The whole trial revolved on the famous necklace affair, for which scandal did by no means spare poor Marie Antoinette, then the flighty and flirting queen of France. Among many other sins laid to her charge, and of which she may have been more or less guilty, she appears at all events to have been innocent of that one, which nevertheless, weighed heavily against her in the scale of popular prepossession. The story has been widely spread; Goethe has made it the subject of a drama (Der Gross-Cophta), and Alexander Dumas has told it in his own anti-historical fashion. According to the French lawyers who were engaged in the case, and among whom we have to mention Cremieux, Emile Leroux, and Dufaure, the affair happened in the following manner:—

Cardinal de Rohan, who seems to have been deeply in love with his Queen, had fallen into disgrace and was banished from the Court. This happened in the year 1784, and he was then fifty-two years old. It was notorious that he could not bear quietly to submit to his fate, and a bold, intriguing woman, the Countess de Valois-Lamotte, the last descendant of an old line of kings, as she pretended, resolved to work on his weakness. Helped by Cagliostro, she convinced the worldly son of the Church that she was highly favoured by the Queen, and undertook to bring about a reconciliation. In the twilight a young Parisian prostitute, Mademoiselle d'Oliva, who had a slight resemblance to an Austrian archduchess, played the part of the French sovereign in the groves of Trianon. The Cardinal received his pardon, was admitted to kiss the hand of her whom he took for his lovely Queen, and rose from his kness intoxicated with pride and happiness. Madame de Lamotte understood to perfection how to take advantage of the silly vanity of Cardinal de Rohan; she asked him, in the name of Marie Antoinette at first for a loan of 60,000 livres, and then for a second one of 100,000. But, not satisfied with that telling success, she resolved on striking a great blow. The Court jewellers, Bohmer and Bassange, were in position of uuique necklace, set in pearls and dismonds, and valued at 1,200,000 livres.

That splendid ornament had been originally destined by the lavish Louis XV. for Madame Dubarry. But the crowned profligate died in the interval, and the jewellers finished the set in the hope that the young Queen who now ruled at Versailles might be induced to buy it. Marie Antoinette was willing enough to adorn her pretty person with the glittering collar, but still she shrank before the enormous expense, and said to Bohmer, "We want a ship more than a jewel." The goldsmiths began to dispair of her bargain, when lo! the 24th of January, 1785, four months after the Trianon comedy, Cardinal de Rohan came in person to inspect the priceless trinket. The foolish swain had been persuaded by Madame de Lamotte that the Queen requested him to buy the necklace for her, and he took for genuine a badly forged signature, by which he was authorized to complete the purchase. In fine, he obtained the costly jewel for 1,600,000 livres, agreed on terms of payment and delivered it to the clever trickster, who, of course promised him to hand it to the enraptured spouse of Louis XVI.

It is matter of history that the necklace was broken into pieces, which were sold in Paris, in England, and in Holland. When the jewellers addressed a memorial to the King, the fraud which had been practised on them was immediately discovered, and poor Cardinal de Rohan was conveyed to the Bastille, together with the two plotting women Lamotte and D'Oliva, and with Cagliostro and some other accomplices. The Grande Chambre took up the affair, and put all the parties on their trial on the 31st of May, 1786. The Cardinal, Cagliostro, and Mademoiselle d'Oliva were acquitted. Count de Lamotte, the husband, was sentenced to be whipped, branded, and sent to the galleys for the remainder of his life, whilst his wife, the daughter of the Valois, received for punishment, "to be beaten and scourged with rods, having a rope around her neck, and whilst naked, then marked on the two shoulders with a hot iron in the form of the letter V., and finally to be conducted to the House of Correction attached to the Hospital de la Salpetriere, and detained there for ever."

The sentence was rigorously executed, and Madame de Lamotte terrified the public, and even the executioners, by her wild and almost unearthly shrieks. Among the curious documents which were read at the late civil law-suit of which we are speaking, is the memoir referring to Cagliostro's share in the affair, and evidently written by himself. He not only exculpates himself with remarkable ability, but dwells also on the romantic incidents in his life, which he relates in the tone of a man who affects to believe in himself, and with an extraordinary knowledge of the art of "getting up" an intricate melodrama.

So far, almost every one may be assumed to be more or less acquainted with this strange affair; the late trial revealed likewise what followed. The Cardinal, when he was arrested in the King's Cabinet, sorrowfully exclaimed, "I have been deceived, Sire; I ask pardon of your Majesties, and am willing to pay for the necklace." And, indeed, he consented to give the jewellers an assignment of 1,919,892 livres on the revenue of his Abbey of Saint-Vaast, which produced 225,000 lives a year. The jewellers, who were indebted for more than a million to M. Deville, the King's Secretary, transferred the assignment to him. But before the first instalment fell due, the deluge came over the world, Cardinal Rohan lost his ecclesiastical dignities and revenues, the Court goldsmiths became bankrupts, and M. Deville never received a farthing. To-day, his heirs maintain that they have a claim on the heirs of Louis Rene Edouard de Rohan. The poor prince of the Church, "Cardinal by the grace of God and the authority of the Apostolic Holy See," as he styled himself, had fled before the flood as far as Ettenheim, a small town in Baden which belonged to him. He acknowledged in an authenticated document, that the trial before the Grande Chambre, and "the general confusion and spoliation of all property, sad effects of the French Revolution, which deprived him of all his revenues derived from the bishopric of Strasbourg, his abbeys and all his church lands in France, have taken from him the means of paying." He died in 1803, instituting by a formal will as universal legatee the dauthter of his cousin, the fair Princess Charlotte Louise Doroghee de Rohan-Rochefort, known for the deep love with which she inspired the unfortunate Duke d'Enghien, who dwelt with her at Ettenheim, where what illegally kidnapped in 1804 by Bonaparte's gendarmes.

Before the unhappy Prince was shot on the glacis of Vincennes he begged of one of his executioners to give the princess a ring, some of his hair, and a letter written in his last moments. On her side, she proved faithful to his memory, and remained unmarried to the day of her death, which took place in 1841. On account of her relation's insolvent state, she had only accepted the Cardinal's inheritance sous bénéfice d'inventaire, that is, on condition to pay no more debts than the estate would yield profits, and she bequeathed her fortune to Prince Armand Meriadec Montbazon de Rohan Rochefort, the father of the princes who were defendants in the case.

Among the landed property appertaining to the cardinal de Rohan was a small house built on the spot where Turrenne fell, near Salzbach, and used as a dwelling-place by the keeper who had to watch over the monument erected to the memory of the great captain. In 1796 the house and the monument were destroyed, but they have been rebuilt since that time.

Leaving these startling historical souvenirs for the actual facts of the legal action, we may shortly record that the heirs and assignees of Secretary Deville contended that Princess Charlotte had been very negligent in business matters, and had omitted to pursue the payment of several debts, and that therefore, her heirs were not entitled to the privilege of the benefice d'inventaire, but ought to be bound to pay two millions, forming the capital and interest of the original debt. But the tribunal decided against them, declaring that the Princes de Rohan-Rochefort have a right to repudiate the bond given by the Cardinal, because he did not leave sufficient money to redeem it. The judgment adds, it is true, that the debt was legitimately due by Madame Lamotte's dupe; but that appears a poor compensation for two millions of francs.
